

Top Ten Tips for Using Women on Mission Curriculum

Follow these tips for making the most of your Women on Mission® resources.

Women on Mission facilitator

1. Pray for God's leadership for your group. Ask Him to direct your plans.
2. Take a close look at the reconstructed Women on Mission Leader. Now instead of a monthly set of ideas for publicity, prayer calendar, and mission action, you'll get a quarterly set.
3. Personalize and reproduce the half sheet "Save the Date" flyer for each month. Copy it onto colorful paper or appropriate scrapbook paper to dress it up.
4. Dive into the combination monthly meeting plan using some points from each feature article: Missionary Spotlight, Bible Study, and Prayer articles. Use all of the plan or customize the plan using the parts that are the best fit for your group. Included is an activity worksheet each month.
5. Review additional information at wmu.com/women.
6. Use these ideas merely as springboards for meeting plans. Create your own adaptations.
7. Secure the needed supplies for the components of the monthly plan you'll be using.
8. Enlist any needed volunteers. The more women you involve, the better your meeting will be.
9. Change the location of your meeting occasionally. Meet in a coffee shop, home, pavilion; at a park; or at a reserved room at a restaurant. Try a time of day you've never considered.
10. Move your women out. Create definite plans for a monthly, quarterly, or ongoing mission action project.

If you are a new Women on Mission facilitator, then you may want to purchase a copy of the Women on Mission Guide for Leaders. This guide gives you all you need in order to be equipped to effectively lead Women on Mission.

You may also want to take advantage of the Leading Women on Mission online training course through ChristianLeaderLearning.com. There are several courses directly related to Women on Mission, as well as many others focused on leadership and enrichment.
